Directions to the Reader.

The reader will please to observe the following general rules in finding the numbers on Houses:—In those streets that run north and south, Main street, for instance, the numbers begin at Market street, running north and south, the odd being on the east side; in the cross streets, the numbers begin at the river, the odd being on the north side.

For the names of streets, see "List of Contents."

As the pronunciation of a name will often admit of various modes of spelling it, the reader is requested not to give up the search should he not find it at the first attempt; but to look for it under every possible variety the ear may dictate.—d. h. stands for dwelling house; c. h. for counting house; n. north; s. south; e. east; w. west; and st. street.

Where the word street is not expressed it is to be understood, as north Main—means north Main street; and south A—means south A street.

BANKS IN ST. LOUIS.

According to the charter issued in December, 1857, the State banks are required to be incorporated with a capital of at least $1,000,000—they are not to issue bills of a less denomination than $5, nor to deal in notes of banks of other States, (or currency), and each of them are required to publish, in two of the city papers, quarterly statements of—

The amount of its capital stock actually paid in.

The amount of real estate held by the bank and branches.

The amount of gold and silver coin and bullion on hand.

The amount of notes of other banks.

The amount due from all other sources.

The amount of undivided profits, and the amount of State bonds on hand.

The amount of its notes and bills in circulation.

The amount due by the bank to all other banks.

The amount due to depositors.

The total amount of debts and liabilities of every description.

The amount on hand of bills discounted, exchange maturing, and the amount of suspended debts.

The aggregate amount of liabilities of all directors, as principals and endorsers. Every bank located in the city of St. Louis shall publish, in at least one newspaper published in that city, a weekly statement of the coin on hand, bills maturing, and the amount of its circulation.

They have to invest 10 per cent. of their paid up capital in State bonds, and to set apart two per cent. of their nett earnings as a contingent fund, to be also invested in State bonds; and in consideration of the privileges allowed them, they have also to pay the State annually one per cent. of the capital stock paid in by the stockholders. Seven per cent. is their limit of interest to be exacted on paper, and semi-annual dividends can be declared, but not to impair the capital stock. At present $2.50 of paper can be issued for every dollar of their paid up specie capital; after two years $3 to $1 are the amount; but as yet, dollar for dollar has not been issued by the city banks, though some of the branches have issued all they are entitled to.

Discount Days.—The private banks and a number of the Savings institutions discount every day. The banks of issue, and some of the Savings banks, have the following days set apart for this:

Mondays and Thursdays.—The State, Southern Bank of St. Louis, Exchange Bank, and People's and United States Savings Institutions.

Tuesdays and Fridays.—The Merchants', and Mechanics' banks and First Ward Savings Institutions.

In addition to the requirements of all the State banks, the following are peculiar to the Bank of the State of Missouri: The bills or notes of said bank shall be receivable in all payments due to the State; and the public moneys of the State, as well as those of any institution or fund for public purposes, and in which the State may be a part owner, shall be kept on deposit in said bank or its branches, whenever lying inactive. Said bank shall, also, be the fiscal agent of the State, negotiate all loans for the State, either in Europe or America, transfer the funds of the State from one point of the State to another, and from one point in the United States to another, charging only the actual expense. Special deposits of the State in the said bank, for a period of twelve months or longer, shall be entitled to draw interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum.

We are indebted to the Daily Democrat of this city, for the above abstract of the State banks, extracted from an interesting account of the banking institutions of this city, recently published in that paper.
